Name of Project: 20 Million Gallon Per Year Biodiesel Fuel Facility

Project Description: Sanimax, the state's largest biodiesel fuel plant will produce 20 million gallons annually at its DeForest, Wisconsin location. Opening in January 2007, the new biodiesel plant will convert tallows, greases and virgin oils, like soybean, into clean-burning fuel with many environmental benefits. Biodiesel generates less carbon monoxide, particulates, climate-changing greenhouse gases, cancer-causing chemicals, or the sulfur emissions that create acid rain. It can be used in any truck or auto that burns diesel fuel. The 15,000 square foot plant will employ 15 full time employees.
